Multimodal Deep Learning Techniques for the Identification

In this case, a learning example (0A r 0B) refers to a pair of objects 0A and 0B that must be transformed in some learning representation so that the model can predict if some relation r holds between them, or not. For instance, in image classification, a model may have to predict if two patches are similar or not [10]. Within this context, a vast majority of works have been tackling symmetric
